

Good Morning Year 3 and 4,

Happy Monday! I hope you had a restful week last week and were able to enjoy the nice weather.

As some of our school return and some of us stay at home, our learning will change slightly from this week. You will be receiving your next homework pack in the next few days which you can continue to work through. You should also continue to complete TTRockstars, EdShed and MyMaths each day. However, each week our daily challenges will look a little different. There will still be ideas for fun activities to complete but we will now have a focus each week on one topic.

This week we will be looking at creating a museum and our focus will be on the Romans. Each day there will be a different challenge to do with the Romans that you can complete at home. We would love you to send in pictures of all the information and activities you have completed at the end of the week creating your own museum of facts. You may even want to research your own facts to include.

Each week your class teacher will be giving each child not at school a phone call. As teachers are teaching, these phone calls will be at some point during the day between around 8 and 4. If you miss the phone call please don't worry the teacher will call you back next week. If you are eager to speak to them and missed their phone call, please email us and they will try and call you back again. If not, they will call the following week. These phone calls are designed to check in with you and the students and see how they are getting on.

Today's challenges are:

- Roman Museum - The concept of money has been around for over 2500 years. Before then, people would trade or barter goods for payment. The Romans used coins made of gold, silver and bronze. These coins were first decorated with their gods and goddesses or buildings and later Roman emperors. Try and make your own Roman coins. Research online to find examples and learn a little more about them. You could draw them, create them on cardboard or even playdoh.
- Write someone a letter. You could make a postcard or write a letter to ask how they are and what they have been doing.
- Do something active this morning. You could complete a Joe Wicks workout, do some cosmic yoga or make your own activity course outside.

As always, remember it is important to balance learning and mindfulness or fun activities. The children may enjoy making their own timetable, scheduling time for fun and creative learning, as well as Maths and English. Remember to be kind and help each other as we continue to stay safe at home. If you have any questions please email us and continue to send in all of the amazing work you are completing.

Warmest Regards

Mrs Keddy, Mrs Kent and Ms May
